EXTRADITION OF CRIMINALS THE CAUSE OF MUCH FRICTION BETWEEN STATES COMPLAINS GOVERNOR OF MONTANA

(By International News Service.)
MADISON, Wis., Nov. 12.—Extradition of criminals in the United States is a very unsatisfactory condition and is a more trouble to state chief executives, Governor S. V. Stewart, of Montana, told the Governors' Conference in an address here today. He declared the perplexed governor often found it impossible to do justice in these cases on account of the difficulty in investigating them for himself.

"Every governor knows and thoroughly appreciates the fact that the law on extradition is well settled," said the governor, "and yet I venture the assertion that extradition matters have in a very considerable degree plagued every man present. Whatever the construction of the constitutional and statutory law on the subject, after all the whole proposition comes down to the question of discretion on the part of the governor. "Only one case out of a hundred, and sometimes out of many hundreds, ever finds its way to the courts for construction. The Harry Thaw cases are rare; and, besides, in a case of that kind, action is never precipitated and there is always plenty of time and opportunity for careful consideration. It would seem to me that the more notorious cases are less likely to involve a governor in error than are those of the humbler sort."

"Experience would seem to indicate that when trouble arises it comes from the fact that the governor is usually called upon in a hurry to issue his requisition upon the governor of another state. The prosecuting witness, county attorney and sheriff in some rural county get together, prepare a batch of papers, regular on their face, and the sheriff hurries to the capital, gets to the governor as quickly as he can, demands the requisition papers at once and sits by while they are being prepared, eager to be on his way. The governor has no opportunity to do other than investigate the regularity of the papers. There is neither time nor means to enable him to conduct an investigation into the merits of the case. There may be a "job" on the part of the prosecuting officers, or there may be bias and prejudice, or there may exist sheer incompetency, any one of which conditions will render the action of the governor not only futile but in some instances absolutely wrong."

"There is no way yet discovered whereby the governor can avoid these chances. In most instances the alleged fugitive is represented to be under arrest or likely to depart from the place wherein he has been located and from which it is sought to return him, and delay would be fatal. "Some governors have adopted an ironclad rule to the effect that they will not consider any question involved in a matter of extradition other than the identity of the individual under arrest. While no doubt that rule serves to shut off much of the resistance and the resultant hearings involved therein, at the same time it is hard to believe that grave wrongs may be done to liberty and personal rights by the enforcement of such a rule."

"And yet there are most substantial reasons to be urged against the system of allowing a hearing on the question of the justice of the demand to return the alleged fugitive. If a hearing on any question other than the question of identity is granted, it must of necessity involve the production of evidence of acts that occurred oftentimes many hundreds and sometimes thousands of miles from the seat of the hearing. Even on the question of flight there is only meager possibility of getting at the real facts in the ordinary case. The prisoner will, of course, deny that he fled, and it is possible that the agent of the governor who is present with the requisition may not have knowledge on that subject. Frequently a prisoner is found among friends who profess to have intimate knowledge of the facts and circumstances of the alleged flight. In that case, if a hearing is to be granted the prisoner will produce what seems to be overwhelming proof to controvert the charge that he is a fugitive from justice. Again, on the other hand, the fact may be that the prisoner did not flee from justice, but finds himself incapable of adducing any proof."

A MONTH'S SUPPLY COAL AVAILABLE RELIEF PROMISED

FRENCH GOVERNMENT PROMISES THAT FUEL WILL BE FURNISHED.

(By Associated Press.)
PARIS, Nov. 12.—The approach of winter, and the continued occupation of the mining districts of the north of France and south of Belgium, brings up the question of fuel supply. Stocks at distributing points not in the hands of Germans are considered insufficient to last more than a month. In order to avoid unfair distribution of stocks in hand, the military governor of Paris has decided that the fuel shall be divided among the different dealers by the intermediary of one of the three coal syndicates. The president of each has been asked to centralize the orders from dealers and control them so that no one gets more than the approximate stock for one month. The public has been advised that there should be no worry, as measures will be taken in an emergency to bring fuel to Paris by water routes that are secured against attacks by the enemy.

GOLDFIELD GRAND JURY FAILS TO INDICT ROCKER

The Goldfield grand jury, which met to consider the case of John Rocker, who shot and killed Joseph McAvoy, a bartender in the red-light district, dismissed the charge against Rocker, because the evidence was insufficient to convict.

BURNS CAUSE PNEUMONIA.

A severe cold, which served to complicate the condition of the young son of Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Codd, who was burned recently while playing with gasoline, has now developed into pneumonia and the boy is seriously ill. Physicians, in almost constant attendance, express grave alarm at the child's condition.—Reno Journal.

BUTLER THEATER.

At the Butler this evening a splendid programme of pictures will be shown, as follows: "The Secret Nest," a Biograph detective drama; "Percy Pumpernickle, Soubrette," a Kalem comedy, which contains a laugh in every foot of it, and a Vitagraph two-reel feature, "His Unknown Girl." Two young soldier chums are in love with the same girl—unknown to each other—and one dies on the battlefield never learning the identity of the unknown girl with whom he has fallen in love. The other man distinguishes himself in action, meets out punishment to a coward, and through a photograph given him by his chum, learns who the "unknown girl" is and marries her. A stirring story, full of snap and action, filled with the alert spirit of the men who defend our country's honor with their lives if necessary. Tomorrow, "Face Value," a two-reel Edison drama, and Hearst-Seig Weekly, showing the world's base ball series between Boston and Philadelphia.—Adv.

THE GLASSES CLINKED.

In these days of political feelings it is meet that some men should show a little feeling for the under dog. This spirit was exemplified Wednesday evening at the Arlington bar when a prominent Democrat made the following toast: "Let us drink now to our chief executive, Tasker L. Oddie, a pioneer of Nye county, an officer and a gentleman." And the glasses clinked.—Carson News.

Daniel O'Connell—"The Liberator"

LD ERIN has given the world many a genius and many a Lover of Liberty, but none greater than the eloquent O'Connell. This noble Irishman unselfishly devoted every moment of his life to regain the Freedom of his Fatherland. His oratory, because of his flaming earnestness, exercised a powerful influence over the House of Commons and hastened many reforms for Ireland. Daniel O'Connell was the first to realize the irresistible strength of a union of millions of Irishmen, and to this end he labored night and day. Huge mass meetings were everywhere organized throughout Ireland and addressed by the masterful O'Connell. When confident of success and with victory in sight he was arrested and condemned to prison. When liberated his splendid constitution was shattered, but he continued until his dying hour to work and pray for Irish Liberty. It is needless to say that Daniel O'Connell was opposed to any Prohibitory legislation which invaded the Natural Rights of Man. He would no more vote for such tyrannous enactments than will our millions of Irish-American citizens. They know that there is no evil in the barley brews and light wines of their fathers—EVIL ONLY IS IN THE MAN WHO MISUSES THEM. For 57 years Anheuser-Busch have honestly brewed honest beers, and they are proud of the popularity their great brand Budweiser enjoys with those of Irish blood. Our Irish citizens have helped to make our nation great among the nations of the world. Seven thousand, five hundred people are daily required to keep pace with the natural demand for Budweiser.
